FROM THE ASSOCIATION:

The benefits you receive by getting your concealed carry instruction from a member of our association are great. Your training comes from a true professional, not only as that of an instructor, but that as a current or former law enforcement officer.

Whatever instructor you choose, he or she is aware that if you find yourself in a legal court proceeding because of an armed encounter you were engaged in, he or she will more than likely be summoned by your attorney to testify on your behalf.

Do you want the person on the stand testifying on your behalf to be the fellow down the street who works in the factory or sells insurance during the week and went to a basic NRA instructor's course so he could make a few hundred bucks on the weekends? Someone who has never filled out a police report or a statement? Someone who has never taken the seat as a witness in court, and is unfamiliar with the court room environment?

Or do you want someone who will testify that is very familiar with the procedural environment. Someone who has filled out police reports, affidavits, and other legal documents on a daily basis? Someone who is very comfortable on the witness stand?

You see, the benefits can carry on way past the training. The choice is up to you!

Concealed Advantage is an "LCM"

That means that the instructor is classified as a "Legal Consultant Member" and that he has agreed with the other LCM's to be legal consultants (from the training aspect) for you should you find yourself in a legal situation. Just think, if the worst were to happen, you would not only have the benefit of your instructor's training and experience but that of the other members who have agreed to act as "LCM!"
